

Minor in Urban Community Studies

Programs in Urban Community Studies (UCS) are offered at the Jacob H. Carruthers Center for Inner City Studies (CCICS), 700 East Oakwood Boulevard, 60653, in the heart of Chicago's historic Bronzeville community. The scholar/activist thrust is the overriding entity that drives the community and academic programming of the programs of the Carruthers Center.

The Programs in Urban Community Studies, through the Goodwin College of Education, offer the following degrees:

Bachelor of Arts in Urban Community Studies

Minor in Urban Community Studies

Master of Arts in Urban Community Studies

Minor in Urban Community Studies (18 credit hours)

The minor Urban Community Studies is designed to meet the needs of non-education majors as well as education majors who plan to work in inner urban communities and schools. It will provide an opportunity for students to engage with the social, political, economic, and cultural issues that define the urban context. It will also provide an opportunity for students to gain exposure to urban communities as well as community-based organizations and community institutions. This is not a teacher preparation program and coursework does not lead to licensure.

Specific Goals of the Minor in Urban Community Studies

Students will:

- Gain knowledge of the specific social, political, economic, and cultural issues related to urban communities.
- Value cultural diversity and individual differences in urban environments.
- Engage in positive interactions with key stakeholders in community settings or educational settings.
